Sydney Mitchell Commercial Armour is an annual retainer arrangement which has been developed to offer the business client targeted commercial legal assistance and support.

Commercial Armour

.... Prepare, Prevent and Protect.

Too often we see businesses make mistakes which can result in costly legal bills at some future point. Such mistakes include:

- Relying upon ineffective terms and conditions which are only really stress tested when a problem arises (but by then it is usually too late)
- Failing to change, update and develop their contractual documents as their business grows and develops and the law changes
- Becoming involved in a dispute with a third party without first taking legal advice

To deal with these common mistakes we wanted to create a product that was affordable, would address defective documents and encourage clients to speak to us without fear of unexpected bills. Commercial Armour has been developed to address these very issues.

Our Commercial Armour will:

- Reduce the risk of litigation by helping you to avoid reliance on defective contractual documents which are more likely to be open to legal challenge
- Prepare you for business trading with contractual documents that meet the needs of your individual business, that are effective and compliant with current UK legislation
- Protect your business by ensuring that when problems first arise (or even before the problems arise!) you have access to our lawyers nearly every day of the year

There can be no doubt that Commercial Armour will put you and your business in a position of strength. You can be certain of your core contractual documentation and you can be confident that if something does go wrong you have easy access to our expert legal advisers.
